

The hoof width for gluing should be at least 2% narrower than the inside edge of the standard boot. The 2% provides extra space for the glue. Before printing, make sure the printer has the page scaling set on "none" or "100%". After printing, always check the length and width numbers with a ruler to insure an accurate template.

These numbers represent the maximum length and width of a hoof that will fit this size boot.

